The Shipyard Loading Out Aveogan

Job Specs

Weights:
1,200 Tons

Dimensions:
128'L x 41'W

Equipment Used:
46 axle lines of SPMTs,

ramps & winch trucks

The team recently tackled a massive tugboat load out project for a ship builder in south Louisiana. Berard team members utilized 46 axle lines of SPMTs in a three file configuration to lift the tug Aveogan from it's foundation. It was then transported and maneuvered through the fabrication yard and situated to roll stern first onto the client's dry dock. Once at the loading ramps, the dry dock's ballasting system was started and the team rolled forward onto the dry dock. The mission was completed in minimal time and performed safely. The client was satisfied with Berard's service and the Aveogan will be hitting the water and ready to work very soon. We would like to congratulate everyone involved for another successful load out!

Recently the Berard team was contracted to transport two cold boxes from a fabricator in South Louisiana to the Port of Houston, Texas for export. The larger of the two boxes weighed 240,000 lbs., measured 49 feet long, 20 feet wide, and 16 feet high. Berard project managers determined barging to be the most economical method of transport. The cold boxes were loaded onto the Berard "BTI 1945" deck barge using Goldhofer PST-SLE transporters. The boxes were secured for marine transit as per the Berard designed plan, then barged via the Intracoastal Waterway to Houston, TX for direct loading to ocean vessel. Another on-time delivery for the Berard team.
