Moving big things is what we're all about at Berard. When a client needed a massive stacker-reclaimer crane transported, they knew Berard was the right company for the job. Berard engineers and project managers went to work to find the right solution to make the move a successful one. The team hit the ground running and executed a plan to support and lift the cargo properly, then rotate it 90 degrees to begin the transport phase. The cargo was transported a distance of about four football fields in length, where it was lowered onto a set of rails. Once this phase was completed, the team transported two large conveyor structures to the same location to be joined with the stacker-reclaimer. The team did an incredible job on this project and we thank everyone for making this another successful and safe one.

Berard has proven time and again that when clients need multiple pieces of cargo transported and loaded out, we're the ones for the job. The team recently transported six electrical buildings from a fabricator in Beaumont, Texas to the Port of Beaumont, where they were loaded onto a deck barge destined for a major plant project in Southwest Louisiana. Berard heavy transport specialists did their best to ensure the several trips to the port were performed in a timely and safe manner. Berard project managers worked closely with several agencies, including railroad companies, to gain clearance for several rail crossings along the route. The team did a spectacular job getting these buildings delivered, and we're grateful for their hard work and dedication to the team!

2020 was an excellent year for us here at Berard. It was that way thanks to our great clients and the dedication of our team members who forged ahead in a year filled with trials and tribulations. We have always been grateful for the many blessings we've received throughout the years.

Looking forward, our team plans to stay the course as we've done before, leading the way in our industry through hard work and dedication to the client. Our best wishes to you & your family, and our incredible team members for a great 2021!
